Mixtures of Thought in Dreams. Consider the wild mixtures of thought, displayed both in the waking life and the dreams of mankind. How grand! How mean! How sudden the leap from one to the other! How inscrutable the succession! How defiant of orderly control! It is as if the soul were a thinking ruin; which it verily is. The angel and the demon life appear to be contending in it. The imagination revels in beauty exceeding all the beauty of things, wails in images dire and monstrous, wallows in murderous and base suggestions that shame our inward dignity; so that a great part of the study and a principal art of life is to keep our decency by a wise selection from what we think and a careful suppression of the remainder.-Horace Bushnell.

Quinine in Sunflower. An eminent Spanish scientist has made the recent discovery that the sunflower yields a splendid febrifuge that can be used as a substitute for quinine. More than ten years ago Moncorvo reported to the Therapeutical Society of Parls with relation to the same subject. Accordingly the sunflower should not only by its growing exert great fever-dispelling effect, but also yield a product which is used advantageously in all fevers.

Congressman Cochran is reported to have made a speech at New Rochelle, N. Y., in which he said that "five men in the United States now completely dominate the goverment, and are, in fact, muchstronger than any government." And Secretary Taft, in a speech at Boston, December 30th, 1907, said, or is reported to have said, "If the abuses of monopoly and discrimination can not he restrained, if the concentration of powers made possible by such abuses continues and increases, and it is made manifest that under the system of individualism and private property, the tyranny and oppression of an oligarchy of wealth cannot be avoided then socialism will triumph and the institution of private property will perish."

And it is made manifest! Manifest to whom? Bourke Cochran. He fine spruce timber across the boundary, and now the same Theodore recommends the removal of the tariff on paper?

When these things are made manifest! Who is it that is holding the light so it will not shine on the truth that these things be made manifest to the suffering, people? Only a few days ago I got a letter rom an old Iron Mountain track foreman asking me to give him work, saying, that times are hardor than in 1873—the year of the great panic. "I must do something," he said, "for I am broke." And my heart goes out in sympathy, not only to him, but to the hundreds of thousands who must several years ago the Parable of disease and diabetes. I took time by the forelock and bought a small farm, and now have a home where I can live until the stress of the present oppression is over. I am not howling for myself, as I can live under competition a few more years, at least, but I would prefer to see everybody prosperous and happy.

The wealth of our great country is becoming concentrated in fewer and fewer hands. I cannot but think that we are approaching a great precipice-over which we shall go into anarchy and destruction, unless the people can be awakened in time. God grant that they may and that our fair country be saved from destruction.

Nor satisfied with Mayor Johnson's positive refusal to lend his name to the efforts to side-track Bryan's candidacy, some of the industrious adversaries of Bryan in Ohio concocted a story to the effect that Johnson and Harmon had made a combination to give the State of Ohio to the one of them who could capture the most delegates. Of course the Associated Press papers over the country published this, and equally of course they did not publish Mayor Johnson's denial. Here is what he said, as reported by the Cleveland Plain Dealer of the 13th: "It was a mean, scurrilous article, without the slightest basis of truth. The Essence of Duliness.

It is true, no doubt, that many learned people are dull; but there is no indication whatever that they are dull because they are learned. True dullness is seldom acquired; it is a natural grace, the manifestations of which, however modified by education, remain in substance the same. Fill a dull man to the brim with knowledge, and he will not become less dull, as the enthusiasts for education vainly imagine: but neither will he become duller. He will remain in essence what he always has been and always must have been. But whereas his duliness would, if left to itself, have been merely vacuous, it may have become under careful cultivation, pretentious and pedantic.-Balfour.

Tin Mines in Malaya.

A correspondent from the Malay peninsula states that the projected railway from Hongkong will be likely to traverse the rich mineral regions of Siamese Malaya. Lang Suan has a tin supply that cannot be exhausted in a hundred years to come, while the same may be said of Renang. There are 70 mines in the region of Lang Suan, most of which are worked by natives, but the European concessions in the latter place, as well as in Renang, are exceptionally encouraging and already are giving excellent returns. There is no lack of capital, even the natives making themselves better acquainted with modern machinery and bringing it into use.
